J.D.M. STEWART

TALKS ABOUT HIS CRITICALLY ACCLAIMED,
'WONDERFULLY GOSSIPY' BOOK

Published last year to critical acclaim and listed by the Hill Times as one of the Top 100 political or history books of the year

The renowned historian, Tim Cook, called Being Prime Minister 'a book that is wonderfully gossipy,' while Susan Delacourt of the Toronto Star wrote that 'very few Canadian political books would be classified as beach reads, but Being Prime Minister — about the private lives of Canadian prime ministers — is about the closest we may get this year to a breezy, summer read about politics in this country.'

J.D.M. Stewart has been teaching history at Bishop Strachan School since 2001. His writing has appeared in newspapers across Canada for more than twenty-five years, and some people will rightly note that he got his start by writing letters to the editor of The Globe and Mail, the first of which appeared in 1991. Two hundred letters later he is still contributing. In 2012 he was awarded a Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal for his contributions to history in Canada.

Introducing *L'heure bleue, an after-work hour of conversations led by engaging speakers about policy, culture, books, current affairs, history...anything, really. The first two in the series are outlined in the posters below.

L'heure bleue

In that lovely hour when day transitions into night, the world of work eases into the liberating hours of the evening, we gather to engage with speakers who can expand our understanding and appreciation of the myriad topics that pull our attention.

On April 10th we are thrilled to host ROBERT BINET, the 28-year-old Canadian choreographer whose ballets—performed by major companies like the Royal Ballet, Ballet Moscow, and New York City Ballet—have garnered international praise.

"Binet is more than a breath of fresh air in the ballet world; he's like a blast of Novocain. Here's a choreographer with a rich and extensive imagination who wants to do things differently and clearly has the skills to realize his ideas."

—Globe and Mail

Flying in from New York to join Robert in this conversation is Grammy-nominated composer MISSY MAZZOLI, who is composing the music for the one-hour ballet Robert is choreographing for the National Ballet's next season (Orpheus Alive, Nov 15–21).

Missy Mazzoli is "one of the more consistently inventive, surprising composers now working in New York" (The New York Times) and "Brooklyn's post-millennial Mozart" (Time Out New York)
